DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on May 13, 2008 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 17 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kenny et al (US 7,000,684) in view of Colella et al (US 5,783,316).

Kenny et al illustrates in figures 2A and 2B a semiconductor component (99) disposed on and overlapping a cooling element (100), the cooling element including channels and a microstructure for transferring heat as illustrated. The figures illustrate an intermediate support (98), column 9 lines 1-2 discloses the intermediate support as thermal material.

Kenny et al does not explicitly disclose the thermal material compensating for mechanical stresses and does not disclose the thermal material including diamond/metal matrix material with at least one metal selected from copper, cobalt and aluminum.

However, the use of thermal material compensating for mechanical stresses is well known in the art, as described by Colella et al in column 1 lines 64-67, where diamond/metal composites have compatible thermal expansion with semiconductor materials and in column 2 lines 38-40 and lines 52-53 discloses the use of diamond-copper composite materials.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to combine the diamond-copper composite material of Colella et al with the device of Kenny et al because it would provide compatible thermal expansion with the semiconductor component.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-9, 12-16, 18 are allowed.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

After reviewing applicant's arguments and conducting an updated search none of the cited prior arts alone or in combination discloses the claimed semiconductor device with the recited structural combination of independent claim 1, where the laser overlaps the microstructure of the cooling element with the intermediate support compensating for mechanical stresses and the beam collimating device and the laser are on a common substrate.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
